Investigation Report (Public Version) Page 223 Summary

At Nidec, the following circumstances exist, and corporate accounting (accounting standards) and the accounting audit system have been disregarded.

- ① Matters that should be strictly handled in accordance with accounting standards, such as impairment losses and provisions, are processed according to the achievement of profit targets
- ② The Company held a mistaken perception of the accounting audit system for many years
 - Attempting to have the accounting auditor approve or tacitly accept accounting treatments that deviate from accounting standards
 - Attempting to postpone expense recognition through explanations containing false information, etc.
 - Holding the audit firm responsible when errors in accounting treatment are discovered, etc.

We solemnly acknowledge the above items pointed out and will further promote fundamental reforms of our corporate culture in order to restore trust from society.
